Why Did Boston Win?

Because they had the best team, you will say. That principle holds good everywhere. The best man wins-in love, in business, in war.

Clothes don't make the man, but they play a mighty big part. Men with that "successful" appearance command respect and attention where others do not.

To dress well used to mean a big expense. But it doesn't any more. Not if you have your clothes made at Wilner's, Washington's busiest tailor.

Coach Maddern had another large squad out yesterday and held a short scrimmage. He drilled the second team in some of the plays likely to be used by Villanova on Saturday and used the varsity in breaking up the formations. He gave the men special instruction in watching the forward pass and showed them a defensive way of breaking them up whenever they were tried.

After the scrimmage the team was given a long signal drill in which the plays devised for the game with Villanova were rehearsed. The rough edges were taken off some of the old plays and the possibility of fumbles was prevented. It has been noticed in the past that the back field mer have a tendency to hesitate, and instructed them in the way to carry the ball and to hit the line in a crouching position.

FAIRLY CRUSH MACKMEN

By FRANK G. MENKE.

Boston, Oct. 12,-"Trojan Johnny" Evers smashed out a single in the fifth inning of this afternoon's baseball game and the impossible had happened. Two Boston runners crossed the plate, clinching the game for the Boston Braves, giving them their fourth straight victory over the Philadelphia Athletics and the baseball championship of the world.

Paur strateh victories for the Braves Four straight victories for the Braves over the once peerless but still wonderful Mackmen. What a marvelous schieve-ment! Fairly Cruush Macks.

There was nothing flukey about the Braves' first victory in Philadelphia on Friday. They fairly crushed the Athletcs that day. They played a game then that caused the experts to predict they would be the next champions of the world unless they showed a startling reversal of form. But the reversal didn't come, nor did the "crack" come. The Braves well to gether because they are welded into one solid, compact mass that no force in baseball at the present has been able to stop.

The Braves won Saturday because

James, the huge Boston twirler, held the enemy in the paim of his hand, and be-cause the great infield of the Braves backed up James at critical moments and checked every Athletic raily that started. The Braves won on Monday because they showed their wonderful gameness-because they fought from behind, time and again, never despairing, never discouraged, always rushing forward and rushing forward fast. The poor judg-ment of Connie Mack in the tenth inning of yesterday's game when he let Joe Bush remain in the box with 25,529 fans shricking in his ears, may have helped the Braves. But maybe it didn't. Had Connie substituted some other pitcher he might have fared the same as did Bush in the tenth and the final twelfth inningand probably worse.

Smash Way to Victory.

The Braves showed their wonderful fighting spirit yesterday—a spirit of the kind that nothing daunts. Nothing seems too hard or impossible for them to ac-complish on a ball field. And, in this series, nothing was too hard. They smashed their way to the champoinship of the world by the most direct route-four straight games—and in doing so established a record for world series battles that never can be beaten.
There was nothing undeserved, nothing lucky about th Braves victory today.

They won because they deserved to win-because their own defense was a inning by scoring one run. Evers walked and went to second on Connolly's out-Whitted singled, sending Evers to third lost four games in world's series and and "Trojan Johnny" scored on Schmidt's won one. of the Columbia Country Club's annual.
